English 102: Inquiry into the South

Please take the SAIS evaluation.
Please take this time to take the SAIS evaluation for this class.

- Please fill in the comment boxes. I do read every word you write and I regularly make changes based on student feedback.

- If you have already taken the evaluation, you can spend this time working on your blog.
One-on-One Conference Sign-Up

- Please sign-up for a conference slot. Write down your time and set an alarm for yourself. You should have your blog as close to completion as possible.

- That is, the majority of your composition in which you talk about your collection as a whole should be written, all of your pages should be created, and your works cited should be finished.

- Monday will be the last day we meet as a class; on Monday I will go over the rational letter you will be posting to Blackboard.
Today is the last day to submit any late work.
Extra Credit Work

- Extra credit posters and written responses to pertinent lectures are due on Wednesday the 27th.
- There is a post on Blackboard and the blog providing information of creating a research poster.
The Archival Project Rubric

- As we go over the rubric, ask questions if you need any clarity on what you will be graded on.
- On your note card, write down aspects that you think we should review on Monday.
Making pages for each object.
Homework

Reading: RI Chapter 5 pp. 119-139

Homework: Work on your project.